Dear Dr. James Stemples,

Thank you for your acknowledgment. I have had several exchanges with the Chief Talent Officer, Patrick, in an effort to resolve this matter outside of court. Unfortunately, they continue to obstruct my efforts by providing false information regarding new teaching opportunities in other districts. As you're aware, when a school district requests a resignation or opts not to recommend a contract renewal, the impact is significant on the career of an outstanding computer Science teacher.

I am a certified Harvard Law certified, trained to negotiate legal disputes and advocate using legal precedents. My expertise is recognized across all 50 states, including with the application of Generative AI in legal matters. I left an option open to drop this case if we reach out of court resolution. Lawyers were asking 10-25K retainer for the case, Patrick was well aware of that (Please see attached below snapshot), While I was still preparing solutions for the Brooke Points students' and other schools' assignments as I had all high schools at Stafford in my STAT Governor CTE/Business program. I never resigned my position as per integrity and professionalism

Thank you.

Good Morning Patrick, I forwarded you the last assignment on Feb 5th 2024. Please convey the solution below to the student's on the emailing list!

Please inform the students that the algorithm presented in Chapter 11, the Java program I provided with full proof it works, for the extra-credit the program will fail at this level:

$n = 3 \cdot 10^{100} + 2 \cdot 10^{100}$

Current computers lack the capability to determine whether this number is prime or not. The textbook "Building Java Programs" is intended for graduate students, not high school, and is priced at $279.

I chose not to follow the textbook because your mathematical understanding is just a little above middle school level. a Linear equation for binary conversion, you have had extreme difficulties to manipulate; from the first month I knew you were well behind schedule in particular with 2 years of covid-19 world pandemic and remote learning!!!
